

Agate Thick Slab

Agates are formed in volcanic lava which contain gas bubbles that fill with water and turn to quartz and sometimes amethyst.

Agate is quartz with impurities. The natural color of Agate is mostly gray, or reddish brown, if it is not primarily one of these colors it has been dyed.

Agate Thick Slab

Agates are formed in volcanic lava which contain gas bubbles that fill with water and turn to quartz and sometimes amethyst.

Agate is quartz with impurities. The natural color of Agate is mostly gray, or reddish brown, if it is not primarily one of these colors it has been dyed.

Agate Thick Slab

Agates are formed in volcanic lava which contain gas bubbles that fill with water and turn to quartz and sometimes amethyst.

Agate is quartz with impurities. The natural color of Agate is mostly gray, or reddish brown, if it is not primarily one of these colors it has been dyed.

Agate Thick Slab

Agates are formed in volcanic lava which contain gas bubbles that fill with water and turn to quartz and sometimes amethyst.

Agate is quartz with impurities. The natural color of Agate is mostly gray, or reddish brown, if it is not primarily one of these colors it has been dyed.

Agate Thick Slab

Agates are formed in volcanic lava which contain gas bubbles that fill with water and turn to quartz and sometimes amethyst.

Agate is quartz with impurities. The natural color of Agate is mostly gray, or reddish brown, if it is not primarily one of these colors it has been dyed.

Agate Thick Slab

Agates are formed in volcanic lava which contain gas bubbles that fill with water and turn to quartz and sometimes amethyst.

Agate is quartz with impurities. The natural color of Agate is mostly gray, or reddish brown, if it is not primarily one of these colors it has been dyed.